

FOOD AT OSCAR SHORTS

Due to recent rules changes* by Carnegie management we are unable to use Coffee Emporium this year. However, the Carnegie bar will sell soft drinks and adult beverages.

Paradoxically, Oscar Shorts patrons are allowed to bring their own food for consumption in the Gallery between program sessions. You can also order pizza and have it delivered to the Carnegie bar, circa 6 pm for the weekend screenings, and circa 7:40 for weeknight screenings. Pizza places that deliver to the Carnegie include Jet's in Newport, Papa John's and others.

With the weekend screenings you will have at least 75 minutes between sessions. You can leave the venue for take-out or eat-in options at local restaurants. For weekday screenings the window between sessions is roughly 30 minutes, so you are best served by bringing your own eats or having something delivered.

The key point with BYOF is that you eat only in the Gallery (not the theatre) and be sure to clean up and properly dispose of food containers. Otherwise, CWC will be hit with a "cleaning fee" by the Carnegie.

*After seven years of CWC providing food for sale at Oscar Shorts and its other film events at the Carnegie, venue management has changed the rules, mandating our use of their "Preferred Caterers." Coffee Emporium has done a terrific job at the Oscar Shorts in the past but they are not on the Carnegie's preferred list.

The preferred caterers provide a specified amount of food at a fixed cost – they do not sell "on spec" as they have no retail establishment in which to liquidate surplus food items. Thus, for this event there will be no food provider, but we will remedy this in the future.
